With humility and devotion we sincerely dedicate this book to our parents

dedication

This is our story—the class of 1958 . . .

. . . at La Salle

College Hall is the beginning and the end for all La Salle students. It is here, prior to their first semester, that the freshmen first meet entrance examinations, the Dean, and the seemingly endless registration fanfold. And it is here, during their last semester, that the seniors check the bulletin boards for the final grades.

The building's four floors house all of the administrative offices, the laboratory facilities, miscellaneous classrooms, the chapel, and the auditorium.

Just as the hall is the beginning for students, so was it the beginning of La Salle. It is the oldest building on campus, and the predominate structure.

Explorers tread many miles on campus during their four years at La Salle. In years to come, as La Salle expands, their between-class walk will grow longer. Even now one experiences a sense of new beginning when entering the modernistic library, or the four svelte dormitories. The College Hall, with its stately tower remains, nevertheless, the symbol of La Salle, past and future.

president

BROTHER E. STANISLAUS, F.S.C.
President

During the past decade, La Salle College has been the object of an unprecedented program, both in enrollment and facilities. The growth of La Salle stands as a staunch tribute to its President, Brother Stanislaus, for he has been the guiding force behind her development. Through his untiring efforts La Salle will see in the near future a student union building and a science building erected on her campus. What the La Salle of the future will be like it is difficult to imagine, but whatever it may be it will stand as an unfailing tribute to Brother Stanislaus.

BROTHER DANIEL BERNIAN, F.S.C.
Vice-President

vice-president

As the Vice-President, Brother Daniel Bernian acts as the Dean of all Students. He is responsible for the enforcement of the regulations governing the four thousand students of the college and also for the administration of an adequate personnel program to minister student services. Due to his inspiration, encouragement and abilities La Salle has seen the growth of activities, curricular and extra-curricular; as well as the development of new and improved facilities, all of which directly contribute to the education which the student receives at La Salle.

Dean of Evening Division

The Dean of the College is in charge of the academic life and curriculum of the students of La Salle. The Deans of the specific schools are accountable to him for an effective academic organization in their respective school. These four men form a well-coordinated unit to which may be attributed the ultimate scholastic success of each student. For they have organized a scholastic program which will afford the student the finest opportunity for success in his chosen career.

administration

As is the case in any large organization, the chief executive is dependent upon a capable administration to aid him in executing the duties of his office. The administration of La Salle College is responsible for ministering to the needs of the student, whether they be academic, spiritual, vocational, physical, or financial. As La Salle continually expands, there is a development of new problems to be solved and new services to be administered. Our administration has demonstrated its efficiency, capability, and flexibility by constantly developing new and better techniques for the systematic and effective handling of one of the finest of academic organizations.

Between the individual student and the administration, stands the governing body at LaSalle, the Student Council. Through this organization, the student presents himself to the administration, the faculty, other institutions, and the public in general. On campus, the student officers have risen to a position of unprecedented stature. They have devoted themselves to serve the best interests of the entire student body. Under the leadership of Robert Boyle, Council policy was maintained resolutely throughout the year. The president was ably assisted by his fellow officers, and by the various committees, organized and supervised by the Council. The moderator of the organization is Brother Augustine.

Joe Panchella, Joe Yambor, Bob Boyle and Paul Cundey examine the financial report of Student Council's Student Loan program.

Brother D. Augustine, moderator, sits in on an Executive Board meeting.

executive board

The Executive Board of Student Council is the co-curricular and extra-curricular branch of student government. Seated on the Board are the thirty-three heads of clubs, honor societies, and fraternities. The Board has the delegated power to supervise the activities of all organizations and the authority to disband any organization for violation of rules.

The Board is an integral part of student government, representing the most active half of the student body on campus. Its treasury is open to any organization desiring to present some activity or program that is of a school-wide nature. This enables those organizations which are not able to present programs because of lack of financial resources to do so. The annual Open House program is also sponsored and conducted by the Board.

Angelo Randazzo, president, David Besselman, secretary, and Paul Cundey, vice-president. Paul Cundey expounds a new Board policy as Dave listens intently. Angelo busily prepares papers for the speech he will deliver next.

Representatives from the campus clubs attend a Monday night meeting held in the Library Lounge.

Executive Board president, Angelo Randazzo, calls a meeting to order.

Robert Morro, treasurer, happily reports that the Board is in good standing financially.

The primary objective of the National Federation of Catholic College Students is to help Catholic colleges to provide in-service training of young Catholic leaders—those persons who, participating fully in the mentality of the Church, make a Catholic impress on their communities, those with whom they work, and all with whom they come in contact. This training is given through the Federation's efforts in further Christianizing and coordinating the co-curricular activities on Catholic college campuses. These activities, along with the academic learning of the students, are used to make their Christian ideals live for them and serve them now, and in the future.

The La Salle College Delegation to the Federation is moderated this year by Brother D. Augustine, and headed by the Senior and Junior Delegates, Angelo Randazzo and Thomas Dean, respectively.

The La Salle Collegian has as its primary function the dissemination of news to the student body. It also serves as a workshop for those students who are interested in journalism as a possible career, or as a diversion. The weekly publication provides news and features which are of a general interest to the students and faculty. Each year, at the Collegian banquet, the newspaper gives an award for "Outstanding Public Service in the Field of Journalism." This year the award was given to Chet Huntley, NBC News Commentator.

Standing: Larry Berger, Mike Tanney, Bob Lydon. Seated: Norb Moser, Tom Adams. Moser is trying to make an obscure point, while Adams and Berger ignore him. Tanney and Lydon feign interest. Oddly enough, these men put a weekly paper together.

Largely through the efforts of Editor-in-Chief, Norb Moser, the Collegian became a much-improved college newspaper. Norb also wrote a humorous weekly column during his four years at La Salle.

Chet Huntley, Bob Shaefer, Jim McCrane, Norb Moser, Mike Tanney, and Tom Adams at Collegian banquet. Huntley, NBC news commentator, received Collegian award for outstanding service in journalism. Jim McCrane receives Collegian key from Bob Shaefer.

the explorer

Editor-in-Chief Tom Adams appears to be working at some important business pertinent to the Explorer. He's not though. He's just posing. This picture was taken a way long before the copy deadline, which is the traditional time to start working on things. Besides, there wasn't anybody on the staff that could type that good anyhow.

This is a mere drop in the bucket of the cast of thousands who worked their fingers to the bone for months on end trying to get out a craftsmanlike job in time to beat the deadline. We were four months late. Caught as they are rushing about their work are (standing) Callamaro, Hager, Shaheen, an unidentified staff member, Cundey, Reed, Mauer, Moser, and another fellow; (seated) Besselman, LaRuffa, Adams, Peregoy, Wilk, and Borger.

Explorer second banana John Larkin lets off steam while rejecting some unbelievably bad candid shots intended for the book. Larkin doubles as a photographer.

"Money-bags" Peregoy goes over the day's receipts. For a good while business was pretty bad, and in justifying his existence as staff BM, Dick wore a few holes through the creases.

In keeping with our policy of always throwing in a little extra this youguessit picture, entitled "Contemplation". Free bubble-gum will be mailed, postpaid, to anyone who can tell us on what day the picture was taken. Moser said he couldn't tell, and Larkin, who usually slept with his eyes open, fooled everybody in this one. He was dead this time.

Business Manager Dick Peregoy smirks on as C.I.C. Tom Adams goes over the dummy with staff members. A later picture, which mysteriously disappeared, showed Adams smirking as Peregoy was just about to run out of red ink.

Brother E. Patrick, moderator, advises Jerry Annunziato about a manuscript that was submitted for publication in the new magazine, TRICON.

Primarily the Weber Society presents an opportunity for students interested in literature to associate in a cordial, scholarly atmosphere. Charged with the publication of the new literary magazine TRICON, the society seeks to stimulate the creative urges of the student body.

Jerry Annunziato serves as both the society's president and as editor of TRICON; Brother E. Patrick is moderator.

Officers of the Weber Society and the moderator, Bro. Patrick, discuss plans for the spring issue of TRICON.

spanish club

Spanish Club moderator, Mr. Carrio points out a mistake in Tom Dean's homework. Unabashed, Dean argues the point. He inevitably lost—Carrio speaks better Spanish.

"Repeat after me," says Mr. Carrio to the somewhat dubious students, Leo Donohue and Jim Mallon. Tom Dean, who has been through all this, looks on.

Biagio Evangelisto points out the requirements for membership in the Italian Club to his younger brother, Anthony.

John Pettineo, Biagio Evangelisto, John Gee, and Anthony Evangelisto. Newly elected club president, John Pettineo, discusses Circolo LaSalliano's social activities for the spring season with club members.

Circolo La Salliano, the Italian Club of La Salle College, was founded to promote the art, music, literature, and the other cultures of Italy. This is accomplished by the sponsoring of various meetings, lectures, and films centered on the Italian contributions to civilization. Besides this academic role, the club also has a social function. It sponsors numerous stags and dances for its members throughout the year. Club moderator is Dr. Domenico DiMarco of the Modern Language Department. Fernando Lombardi was president of Circolo La Salliano for the year.

german club

Recently revived and already recognized as one of the influential organizations on campus, the German Club, through its monthly meetings, activities, and projects, brings to life the customs and traditions of the German speaking peoples. Among many of the worthwhile projects it sponsors, the German Club obtains scholarship information for German students, secures subscriptions for German newspapers, and promotes the sending of exchange letters to Germany. All this work is capably handled by president John Veen.

With a healthy appetite for the big and the difficult, the Masque has established La Salle as one of the lights in collegiate theater. Under the direction of Dan Rodden it has successfully adapted some of the American theater's most prominent offerings to the La Salle stage. Pre-eminent fare produced in recent seasons includes The Caine Mutiny, Court Martial, Oklahoma!, and South Pacific.

As a departure from the ordinary extraordinary, the Masque's presentation this spring was an original musical comedy, Lucky for Me, with book and lyrics by Dan Rodden and music by Joan Ford. The musical has been done by several other colleges throughout the country and is being considered for "off-Broadway" production.

Polka dotted Dot (Sandstrom) gushes over Curly Dave Shannon to no immediate avail in the Masque's 1957 production.

Ali Hakim, er . . . Ed Sager, sells his wares to the very gullible OKies in an impressive city-slicker style.

Plenty of "Bellerin', hand clappin' and foot stompin'" resulted in this organized mayhem. After much midnight oil had been burnt at rehearsals the cast unanimously agreed that the show was really Rodden.

David Besselman was apparently pleased with the medical text he just returned to Brother Christopher.

The Pennsylvania Delta chapter of Alpha Epsilon Delta was founded at La Salle College in 1950 under the sponsorship of the Fabrician Society. As an honorary pre-medical society, its aims include encouraging excellence in pre-medical scholarship, stimulating an appreciation of the importance of pre-medical education in the study of medicine, promoting cooperation and contacts between medical and pre-medical students and educators, and bringing together similarly interested students. The outstanding activity of the year is the Annual Eastern Pennsylvania Pre-Medical Conference which the chapter holds at one of the Philadelphia medical schools. The Conference includes a tour of the medical buildings and a symposium on the many facets of medical education.

Brother Christopher doesn't find the mistake in the minutes as amusing as AED's executive committee.

fabrician society

The Fabrician Society provides La Salle students who are interested in the biological sciences with an opportunity to participate in the undertakings of fellow students of common interests. The second oldest society on campus, originated in 1933 as the Pre-Medical Society of La Salle College, the Fabrician Society celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary this year.

Extensive re-organization took place last fall with the general aim of providing more services to the Pre-Medical student. Thus, upper class advisors were appointed for each freshman Biology major; guest speakers addressed the society; a debate was held at St. Joseph's College; and the Annual Dance was held in early December.

The Chymian Society, the La Salle College Student Affiliate Chapter of the American Chemical Society, has for its main purpose to foster interest in chemistry through its affiliation with the Chemical research industries, and to encourage intellectual progress. This is achieved by plant trips, movies, and lectures, and by association with chemistry students from La Salle and other area institutions. Secondly, the Chymian Society affords opportunities for the social aspects of the chemistry major's life at La Salle.

As is customary at meetings, a club member—here a student brother—lectures on mathematics.

Kappa Mu Epsilon was founded by mathematics majors on the undergraduate level. Its four-fold purpose is to further interest in mathematics, to help members realize its important functions in today's world, to aid the student in appreciating math through its demands for rigorous and logical modes of thought, and to acquaint members with outstanding achievements in the field. Students must maintain at least a 2.7 average to remain in the honorary society. Brother Damian is moderator of La Salle's Pennsylvania Chapter of Kappa Mu Epsilon.

The Newtonian Society's main objective is to promote the study and appreciation of physics both as a science and as a vocation among the students of La Salle College. The organization presents to its members information on recent developments in the application of physics by means of field trips to scientific laboratories, motion pictures, and lectures, given both by students and specialists in the various scientific fields.

One of the largest groups on campus, the Education Society was instituted to encourage constructive interest in the solution of teaching problems and foster high ideals in the profession. So important is this extra-curricular activity considered that membership in the society is required of all education majors. Opportunity for professional development is promoted through organized contacts with teachers actively engaged in the profession, and frequent symposia with experts in the field.

The society's monthly meetings, which are arranged by Brother Azarias, moderator of the group and chairman of the Education department, are usually centered around a talk by a prominent educator. Topics pertinent to the field, such as educational theory, opportunity for advancement, teacher benefits, and salary, are introduced by the guest speaker and followed up by informal discussion.

It also functions in providing opportunities for graduate study or placement after graduation. In order to stimulate interest the club brings notable speakers to the campus, it holds career conferences and forums and, more practically, it sponsors field trips throughout the year. The club also conducts sociological surveys which result in much information about things in general. The president of the Sociology Club is John McCartin, and its moderator is Brother Augustine.

Sigma Beta Kappa's activities are two-fold, religious and social. In fulfilling the former capacity, the fraternity holds an annual Communion Breakfast, and an annual Christmas party for the boys at St. John's Orphanage. In the latter vein, SBK sponsors social activities for general student participation, such as the Thanksgiving and Mardi Gras Dances, and those restricted to club members, such as socials and informal business meetings. Pledges or "worms" are required to pass a six-week initiation period, during which they are required to perform menial tasks, before being considered for membership. Those who worthily pass the trial are accepted at the Annual Dinner Dance, which closes the social year.

To further the work of Catholic Action in every way possible is the purpose of the Benilde Club. Consequently, its functions extend both within and beyond the campus boundaries. Benilde Club members have worked in conjunction with CCD club members engaged in teaching catechism at Saint Simons and Blessed Martin DePorres centers during the past year. Furthermore, in fulfilling the religious activities of college life, various guest speakers were invited to La Salle, religious forums were held, and Masses were offered for special intentions of the club.

Over the past few years the Gavel Society, under the tutelage of Mr. Charles V. The organization, which has a year long schedule, entered many highly rated tournaments during the past year. Among the more outstanding of these attended were Brown Tournament, in which they placed third out of forty competing teams, and New York University Tournament, in which they tied for second place out of thirty top rate debating teams. The Gaval Society was host to University of Toronto and Mercer University's Debating Teams during the year.

Founded at La Salle eight years ago, the Caisson Club's objectives are social, academic and military. It encourages the essential qualities of a good military education while projecting to its members the qualities necessary for good officership. In the challenging atmosphere of the La Salle College Campus, the Evening Division Class of 1958 has satisfied its quest for scholarship, friendship, and culture. Here we have benefited from a truly Catholic education which was generously afforded to us under the guidance of the Christian Brothers.

Carrying on in the tradition of Saint John Baptist De La Salle, our Dean, Brother Gregorian Paul, has been friend, educator, and counsellor. He has given unselfishly of his time for the welfare of the students. We are all deeply indebted to him, for without his guidance the achievement of our goal would have been more difficult.

In surveying the past five years, we can say that perseverance was not easy. There were many occasions when discouragement beset us, but we could always depend upon the inspirational influence of Brother Paul and the members of his staff to raise our hopes. Moreover, their constant support of our varied activities did much to aid us in accomplishing our single desire—a well rounded college education.

May the members of the Evening Division Class of 1958 always remember those who have made possible our graduation.

student congress of the evening division

Louis N. Potenza, President

John M. Flynn, Secretary

Since its inception in 1949, the Student Congress of the Evening Division has acted as the official representative of the student body in its relations with the administration and the faculty of the College in matters related to extra-curricular activities and student welfare. Its purposes are to cultivate, promote, and manage all social, religious, and other affairs conducted for the benefit of the student body and to act as an advisory body between the students and the administration.

During the nine year period of its existence, the Student Congress has achieved a record of progress of which any student government could be justifiably proud.

The membership of the Congress for 1957-58 consisted of the officers and 56 elected representatives. The general business of the Congress is transacted at the monthly meetings, one of which is depicted below. Standing committees and special committees plan, organize, and control the activities sponsored by the Congress.

religious activities

In this centenary year of the Apparition of Our Lady at Lourdes, it is fitting that the campus grotto of Lourdes be featured in the Explorer. This is the setting in which the married members of the graduating class and their wives renew their marriage vows in conjunction with the Ph.T. ceremonies.

In keeping with the tradition of a Catholic College, the Evening Division administration, with the cooperation of the Student Congress, provides the opportunities for enlarging the spiritual interests of the students.

Each college year is begun with an Evening Mass of the Holy Ghost; evening services in honor of the Most Blessed Virgin are conducted during the months of October and May; devotions in honor of Our Lady of the Miraculous Medal are held weekly throughout the year on Thursday evenings: a Communion Breakfast is sponsored during Lent; and a closed Retreat at Malvern is scheduled at the end of the Fall Term.

Although participation in these religious activities is voluntary, the need which many students feel for sustaining their spiritual life has resulted in a continuing attendance which adequately justifies the efforts of those who organize and conduct them.

Every Thursday evening at 6:35 o'clock, the Evening Division students gather with Father Mark Heath in the College Chapel to pray to the Immaculate Mother of God for her protection and guidance. The answer to prayer is the solution to many of their problems and a source of encouragement in their difficulties.

Doctor Joseph J. Sprissler, the Business Manager of the College, and the founder and first Director of the Evening Division.

The Doctor Sprissler Award was established by the members of the Student Congress in recognition of the inspirational leadership which their first Director gave to the development of the Evening Division. Not only did he provide the students with the means of achieving a college education, but he also brought to his labors that rare quality of human kindness which found expression in his sensitive awareness of the student as a person. Alumni and faculty alike testify to the spirit of genuine concern for the dignity of the student and his personal problems which Doctor Sprissler by his example fostered among his associates. This spirit has become a unique characteristic of the Evening Division.

the doctor joseph j. sprissler award

The recipient of the Doctor Sprissler Award must be a member of the graduating class who, in addition to his scholastic achievements, must have participated actively in the furtherance of the welfare of his fellow students and have been most instrumental in advancing the ideals and interests of La Salle College.

The Award is a plaque which bears the commemorative inscription "For outstanding participation in extra-curricular activities." It is presented at the Annual Founder's Day Convocation.

The selection committee is appointed by the President of the Student Congress and is charged with the duty of determining the senior who best fulfills the qualifications for the Award.

Louis N. Potenza, President of the Student Congress, is the recipient for 1958 of the Doctor Sprissler Award. "Congratulations, Lou, and good luck!"

a tribute to the wives

Francis E. Swiacki, Co-Chairman

Presenting Matthew Scully and his family, the largest family group among the seniors. Anne Scully is our nomination for the wife of the year. She exemplifies the virtues of all of the wives who were honored by the conferment of the Ph.T. diploma.

The Ph.T. diploma was originated by the Family Forum of La Salle College as a means of recognizing the efforts and sacrifices which the wives of the students made in assisting their husbands to attain the academic status of Bachelor.

Since its origin, the Ph.T. ceremonies have been brought into closer association with the commencement day exercises. On June 1st, the wife of each graduate was cited for having "loyally and lovingly accepted the conditions essential to conjugal and collegiate helpfulness in that she had patiently borne with her spouse in the pursuit of his higher education, and had intuitively provided spiritual encouragement, thereby fulfilling the requirements for the degree, Ph.T. (Puttrig him Through)."

The College, in honoring the wives of the graduates, hopes to make reparation in part for any alienation of affection of which it has been guilty.

The Scully children—Matthew, Jr., Mary Anne, Dennis, Thomas, and Martina—are happy that daddy can now spend more time with them. Dennis, Thomas, and Martina were born after Matt matriculated in the Evening Division.

The Industrial Relations Society, one of the youngest of the Evening Division organizations, is composed of students whose primary academic interests are focused on the industrial relations field. The objective of the organization is to promote the exchange of viewpoints related to the country's industrial problems which, through the expansion of the unionist movement and the growth of industry, have become more important and complicated each year.

senior dinner dance

The Annual Senior Dinner Dance is the highlight of the social season for the members of the graduating class. It provides the one occasion of the entire Evening Division social calendar for a formal affair. The wives of the Seniors, particularly, anticipate and enjoy this too infrequent opportunity of displaying their fineries. With the exception of the graduation ceremonies, this is the affair which is long remembered by the Seniors.

Nearly fifty couples danced to the music of the "Blue Notes" in the beautiful setting of the Torredale Country Club on Saturday, April 12th. It seems that the wives had more reserve energy than their husbands.

Doctor Sprissler, John Malloy, the Senior Class Officers, and their wives or lady friends reflect the happiness of the occasion. All who attended shared the pleasure of this group.

The last dance brought the joyous evening to a close. The final notes of the band have long since dissolved into silence, but the memory of the Senior Dinner Dance lingers on.

Senior Bill Katheder drives in for a floating layup in the opening contest against Millersville. Ed Givnish readies himself for rebound.

Bobby Alden outjumps Georgetown center (by at least a foot) on the opening jump. Hugh Brolly (center front) outmaneuvers opposing forward in order to receive the tap. Referee gets in the way.

The La Salle bench comes alive during the extra period as a field goal is sunk against the Hawks at the Palestra. The Explorers came out second best in this one.

Bob Alden and Dick Csensitz go high in the air as Charlie Eltringham, Bill McGonigal, and Penn's George Schmidt get set. Bob's efforts were successful.

In overtime conquest of Niagara, Hooch McGonigal takes advantage of a Purple Eagle's plea to leave the room to take rebound with one hand.

Bill Mantz, Lafayette, seizes opportunity, ball and Al Ferner's right arm in amazingly quick display of nimble hands. Ferner was able to attract attention of referee and Mantz was severely reprimanded.

Jubilation personified! What no other La Salle basketball team has been able to accomplish for the past seven years, this overjoyed bunch was able to achieve in a two-day trip to Richmond, Virginia. They outlasted two Southern opponents, Virginia and Richmond to bring back to La Salle the first Yuletide trophy in many a moon.

Herb Busch, who single-handedly kept Virginia in the running in the opening tourney tilt, scores again.

Bowing down to the mighty Brolly: Hugh has dribbled length of floor for vital points in overtime finale at Richmond.

Despite the fact that for the third straight year the La Salle basketball team participated in no post-season tournament this season packed into it some of the most closely contested and most thrilling games seen in these parts in many a year. There were ten games decided by the margin of four points or less and six of these were overtime affairs. Probably the greatest game ever played in Philadelphia took place between La Salle and Villanova in the second series game of the campaign. The game lasted over two and one-half hours and provided a packed house with a thrill of a life-time. For seniors Charlie Eltringham, Bill Katheder, Bill McGonigal, Ed Givnish, and Tom Garberina it was the close of their college basketball careers. It is the feeling of those connected with the team that these five have had a great deal to do with the development of the large group of sophomores who will stay on to carry out the basketball traditions for the next two years. As was mentioned, the prime characteristic of this outfit seemed to be their fixation for tight ball games. The Explorers led the country with their six overtime encounters.

The big day—November 9, 1957, La Salle's first annual Knicker-Soccer Day. A spirited crowd gathered on this sunny, windy afternoon to watch La Salle take on Philadelphia Textile Institute. Knickers and complimentary collegiate attire were the uniform of the day. All in attendance thoroughly enjoyed themselves as a new tradition was inaugurated on campus.

Tom Beckett painfully displays knack of "using your head" in Soccer. Teammate Pat Kennedy and Textile's W. Williams get in position to recover the ball.

"Who's afraid of the big, bad ball?" George Eliashevsky gives the impression that he is as he moves into booting position.

Adrian Hawryliw gets a high kick away. Pat Kennedy's expression seems to say, "Why couldn't I have done that?"

Underneath this pileup, believe it or not, lies senior Tom Beckett. Tom left the game because of illness or something.

Tom "Bear" Curran, Varsity Crew Coach.

The old and gentlemanly sport of rowing is the white sheep of the La Salle athletic program. The success which almost rewards the efforts of the Explorer sweepsters has made the crew one of the more popular interests of the Blue and Gold athletic fan.

The strongbacks, coached by Tom "Bear" Curran, looked to the '58 season with hopes of capturing a third consecutive Dad Vail title. The Dad Vail is the annual May race, which determines the small college rowing champion. In the ten years that La Salle has had a crew, the Explorers have won five Dad Vail races. Three of these have come in the era of coach Curran.

This season's crew, although hit hard by graduation, was bolstered by good material from last year's strong frosh boat. With senior co-captains Eob Morro and Romeo Boyd combining with fourth year men John Todd and Jim Garvin to form a nucleus, Curran put together a rangy outfit which in early workouts appeared to be as good if not better than past winners.

The life of an oarsman is no picnic. The oarsmen, who, contrary to popular opinion, do not necessarily have weak minds, devote four hours a day to the pursuit of their trade. The dusk hours of chilly late winter afternoons find the slender shells dodging the Schuylkill ice, and the rugged routine doesn't cease until mid-May, by which time the varsity blades are emaciated but well-conditioned versions of the original.

Workouts are normally held in the afternoon, but when coach Curran wants to quicken the conditioning pace, sunrise sessions drag the hearties out of bed at 6:00 a.m. A typical workout involves from six to nine miles of stiff paddling.

A team sport from the word "row!", crew is just the outlet for the man who fancies hard work and a little anonymous fun. The painstaking hours of practice and drilling in fundamental form pay off on race day with the precision and efficiency of a winning crew.

Originally an endeavor of little note, the crew has been gaining stature steadily. Today the oarsmen have the largest representation of all La Salle teams with three eights competing. Spectator wise, crew is the up and coming spectacle. The Dad Vail has become an annual social affair as the gayly attired college lads and lasses flock to the Schuylkill banks to watch the big eights match strokes.

The varsity crew perform their daily ritual of praying to the patron saint of the day. This custom was inaugurated before each race during the 1949 season. Last year it became part of the daily practice routine.

After hearing a rumor that Coach Curran was trapped in a sinking ship off the coast of Newfoundland, the Explorer oarsmen throw caution to the wind and set sail to save their beloved mentor. Rumor proved to be false.

John Todd and Jim Garvin hide the aches and pains of a day's practice with a forced smile for the camera.

Co-captains Romeo Boyd and Bobby Morro shorten oar for Ed Lukas, whose bruised body has necessitated such a move. Notice the delicacy attached to the sawing of an oar?

Gene Sharp flashes his winning relay smile as Joe Lavin is caught flatfooted to the obvious amusement of Buzz Kohler, Jim Sheehan, and Don Schmidt. It was an easy victory—no competition.

Joe Kirk, the winningest coach at La Salle, contemplates the poor performance of this year's squad. They lost one.

All-American Jim Sheehan is all alone in this picture because, as usual, he is far ahead of his competition. That's why he is All-American.

The Explorer mermen lost one meet, one loss in the last 44 outings and a three year streak of 39 had been broken. In four years the seniors had tasted defeat but once.

To whom does the credit for this success belong? Simply, to the team and to the coach who developed them. Three untried sophomores became varsity competition. The seniors, who had been the backbone of the team for the past three years, outdid themselves by swimming events that were entirely new to them. As any team member will attest, the "genius" of 44-year-old coach Joe Kirk (lifetime record—113-38) lies in his ability to use his men to their fullest potential. No opposing coach has ever been able to fully scout an Explorer squad because Kirk simply reaches into his bag of swimmers and never fails to pick a winner.

In a recount we find that the mermen had two undefeated seasons, unprecedented even in the Joe Verdeur era. They captured one Philadelphia Metropolitan Championship, one M.A.C. title, accounted for numerous pool records throughout the conference, produced one All-American and numerous M.A.C. champions.

The seniors leave to the team an example of success and a new streak of four wins.

Joe Lavin churns up a cloud of foam with his powerful legs as he goes through exercises in preparation for a coming meet. It's not really as easy as it looks.

Sprint ace Buzz Kohler and All-American Kip Sheehan flex their muscles at poolside. Burly, pixie-faced distance man, Joe Lavin, hoists his share of weight and wins with equal ease.

Ceiling-skimmer Mitch Sukalski is not trying to bite his knees, but is trying to make-it-look-easy. His somersaulting was a big factor in the record-breaking mermen streak.

John Campanelli developed a small case of the bends during this one, but came out of it in time to fool the judges.

Angular Woody Herr is caught on film straining to imitate a ramrod in the camera's game of "Statues".

St. Joseph's College player is caught in rundown between third and home. Pitcher Tom Madden tossed ball to Catcher Ed Czerniakowski, who made the tag and prevented a St. Joe tally.

Vince Valecci scampers back to third base, even though St. Joe's third-sacker muffed the ball. Vince scored shortly afterwards as La Salle beat St. Joseph's rather easily.

A warm spring afternoon and sunny skies provide background for action on the La Salle diamond. Scenes like this were oft repeated as La Salle batsmen had one of their better seasons. Good pitching and capable fielding made for a successful season.

Trainer John Smith nursing a fallen warrior back to health. John's services were of invaluable aid to the ball club.

Mike Schacter trying to look like Del Ennis (with specs). Mike's big bat was a potent factor in La Salle's diamond successes.

A serious Ed Czerniakowski displays the stance which has enable him to become one of La Salle's leading batsmen.

Tom Madden connects solidly in an effort to help win one of his own ball games.

Early in March the La Salle diamond became the center of much activity. Once again La Salle's baseballers were readying themselves for the coming season. And ready themselves they did, as they progressed to a good showing against tough opponents.

This year, under Coach Jim Pollard, was one of untiring effort on the part of the team. From young frosh to graduating senior hustle and spirit were ever present. These were necessary, considering the gruelling schedule the team went through.

The squad was sparked by a host of seniors, who did outstanding jobs in their final season. Among these were pitcher Tom Madden, catcher Ed Czerniakowski, infielders Tom Wurtenberger, Don Zelinski, and Barney Spearman. Outfielders Mike Schlacter and Vince Valecci made important contributions, as did catcher-first baseman Jerry Sheehan.

Good jobs were also turned in by the underclassmen on the squad. From them Mr. Pollard was able to draw a nucleus of good talent for future needs. Let's hope they make out as good as the '58 squad.

As is evident by the preponderance of white-shirted runners, the La Salle cross-country team is well out in front of the West Chester squad. It ended up pretty much the same way as La Salle eventually won the meet.

All-American track star, Ira Davis, is shown doing what he does best—the hop-step-jump. Ira represented the United States in the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne, Australia.

Coach Frank Wetzler, who is in his tenth year as track, cross-country mentor.

La Salle's sharpshooters come in two categories—ROTC and varsity. This does not mean, however, that our campus is composed of two opposing factions of gun-toters. The two squads contain practically the same membership. Matches are scheduled so that the varsities of opposing schools and the ROTC teams can compete on the same day, and at the same range.

This year under the able tutelage of their new mentor, Lt. Goliash, and new assistant coach, Sgt. Ross, the team was able to slightly improve past records.

Leaving the "gunners" through graduation this year are Charlie Reich, John McIlhenny, and Joe Martin, who compete on both teams, and Tom Kelly and Bill O'Rourke of the varsity.

Senior Tom Kelly practices trigger squeeze in kneeling position. Since Tom is not an ROTC student his talents were limited to the varsity squad.
